

Tending the Fires of Remembrance

Stepping onto the Trail of Vision and Hope

With Barry Brailsford and Warren Brush

Date: Sunday and Monday
April 23-24, 2006

Cost: $195 (includes camping and Healthy food)

Location: Upper Cuyama Valley, approximately 1-hour from Ojai and 2-hours from Santa Barbara and 1.5
hours from San Luis Obispo

To Register, go to www.quailsprings.org
or call 805.886.7239

"If we lose our story, we lose our dream, when we lose our dream
the spirit dies" –Barry Brailsford

Join renowned New Zealand author, storyteller, elder, and teacher, Barry Brailsford and local California storyteller, poet, and teacher, Warren Brush in weaving together two concerted days of learning through stories, sensory activities, and reflection among the gifts of nature. This retreat is designed to light your fire of awakening and awareness that will support and nurture your traverse of your own unique and inspired trail of vision and hope. We will interlace stories of old and new, from Aotearoa (New Zealand) and Turtle Island (N. America) along with hands-on, experiential activities to stimulate the recognition of your inherent gifts, attunement of your senses, and a wakeful surrender to your original instructions.

Barry Brailsford: MA(Hons) New Zealand. Historian, writer, his work is a journey through the wisdom traditions of Pacific peoples. Author of The Tattooed Land, Greenstone Trails, Song of Waitaha, and Song of the Old Tides. Awarded an MBE for his contribution to education and Maori scholarship.

Warren Brush is an applied ecologist, storyteller, poet, and writer who weaves his gifts into the world through his unique, nature based, experiential learning workshops and mentoring venues which nurture the inherent gifts in individuals and in families. He has co-founded Mentoring for Peace, Wilderness Youth Project and Quail Springs Learning Oasis and Permaculture Farm.